

uOttawa

Founded in 1848, the University of Ottawa is the largest bilingual French-English university in North America and plays a unique role in promoting Francophone issues in Canada. The University's well-deserved reputation for excellence in teaching, research and innovation, coupled with its international outlook, its high academic and scientific standards, and the support it provides to its employees, allow it to attract the best researchers and experts from around the world and to enjoy an excellent employee retention rate.

We are currently seeking qualified individuals to fill positions in the following areas:

- Administrative and support positions
- Student Assistantships (Teaching and Research)
- Teaching and research

The University of Ottawa aspires to employing a staff that fully represents the diversity of Canada's population. As a result, it is committed to employment equity principles and aims to provide an inclusive and barrier-free workplace.

The University of Ottawa recognizes that it is a basic right of every person to feel comfortable at work, contribute and reach his or her full potential within the workplace, regardless of his or her experiences, origins and competencies. The University holds to the principles of diversity and equity. It offers equal opportunity to all its employees.

The University of Ottawa is committed to recruit, hire and invest in its staff in a fair and inclusive manner. It firmly believes that this benefits all concerned parties and optimizes its innovation, engagement and performance. The University also values the contribution of individuals and diverse communities.

